OFFICE OF THE GAZETTE, FORT WORTH, TEX., March 10, 1890. The weather to-day was slightly unfavorable

In general market lines, produce, etc., stocks were somewhat limited to open up the week on, but Fort Worth dealers are hustlers and the trade was supplied without a hitch. There are no changes in quotations of especial importance in any commodities.

Domestic Breadstuffs,

Bradstreet's Journal, in summing up the breadstuffs market for the past week, says of flour that a more confident temper has been discernable in the market, especially at the extreme close, as favored by recent material reduction in the amount of exposed lots (out of store) pressing for sale, the practical abandon-ment by the great railway carriers of the recently inaugurated policy of compelling the removal of supplies from cars and docks on ten day notices (thus helping receivers to dock accommodation running on to the close of March, as to convenience of sale and distribution), the sharp rally in wheat, partly on freer export takings and until her tather's relatives in Ohio send local milling purchases, and the firmer and more hopeful views of interior millers, who in several instances have ordered a rise of 5@15c. per barrel on previous quotations for known and popular brands of extras, as well of winter as of spring wheat product, and declined to proceed with sales at figures under asking rates. The demand has been broadening, though not as a rule active either for home use or export, up to Thursday, when home trade buyers made quite iberal purchases, particularly of medium and high-grade extras (spring and winter). The export call has been again mostly for city mill extras and equivalent grades of Western winter wheat extras suited to the West Indies and South America. The production of the more prominent local mills is now well under contract for weeks ahead. Considerable inquiry has been noted for European markets, mainly for extras of medium and low qualities in this morning Judge Sheppard resumed sacks, but the bidding has not been generally up to the views of sellers. Superfines and fines have gained a little in popular esteem, and have been moving rather more freely, partly for shipment to the British provential markets. The outflow of flour on through freight contracts continued on the liberal scale, in good part in the consignment form and generally in steady ocean freight rates. Rye flour and cornup to this hour have not agreed on a meal were quoted steady on a moderate movement (Brandywine cornmeal sold at $255 per barrel). Buckwheat flour was a shade easier, being assaulted and of his mysterious and toward the close very quiet (the active portion of the season being over). Buckwheat without further change and very dull.
